

Wiseman Career Lecture 4

In our fourth Wiseman Career Lecture on 2nd October, we hosted Mr Charles Reindorf, Managing Director and Global Markets Data Management Executive at The Bank of America. He gave the students an overview of Global Banking and Global Markets and the guiding principles of the bank. There are different ways to find an employment within the bank, one of them through a degree apprenticeship. Mr Reindorf emphasised that what the company is looking for are strategic thinkers, people with relentless passion and hunger to learn, great team players and individuals with unique thoughts and fresh ideas. For some areas of the bank analytical and technical skills are important, so he recommended studying Maths or Computer Science but in many other departments people come from many different walks of life and different degrees. All is needed is passion and dedication.

Again the lecture was well attended with many Y10 & 11 Business GCSE students as well as Sixth Formers. Many of them stayed behind to talk to Mr Reindorf and ask him questions. We are really grateful for the time he gave to the students.
