

Wiseman Career Lecture 19

Our Lecture number 19 on 18th

March 2024 was delivered by a team from the University of Westminster Criminology Department. It was led by Dr Dan Petrosian, an alumnus of Cardinal Wiseman (2008), who is currently a Criminology Lecturer. He was supported by Dr Sinem Bozkurt and a group of undergraduate students. We all learned so much about the complexity of studying Criminology, which covers so many aspects of Sociology, Psychology, Law, Politics and even Geography and Economics and where students explore how power and inequalities shape crime, harm, victimisation and criminal justice. The talk was challenging our young students' views and stereotypes. There was a list of many possible career progression paths such as Probation or Prison Officer, Police Officer, Civil Service, Border Force or Social Researcher. The talk was very well attended and many students stayed behind to chat to the team and ask lots of questions.
